

Remote Family Nurse Practitioner: Rural and Underserved Communities.

If you hold a Bachelor of Science in Nursing and feel passionate about providing for the health care of families within your community, Regis University's Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) program offers a pathway for you. This low-residency program is offered in a synchronized online format, allowing you to be part of the classroom from a distance.

Care for every member of the family.

To be eligible for this program, you must reside outside Colorado's Front Range region or outside the state of Colorado.* Students living along the Front Range, from Fort Collins to Colorado Springs, are eligible for this program if they work at Denver Health, Clinica Family Health or Peak Vista Community Health. Regis University offers an FNP program at our Northwest Denver campus for Front Range residents.
